

Live Webchat

Citizen Journalism Discussion with CNN's Lila King

The American Center hosts a web chat in honor of World Press Freedom Day
with Lila King, Senior Director for Social News at CNN

Ms. King leads the network's user-participation efforts, including overseeing CNN's user-generated news Web site, iReport.com. King will share her thoughts on citizen journalism and tools for civic engagement, plus answer questions on citizen journalism issues within your communities!

Thursday, May 2, 2013
4:30 p.m.
American Center
#44, Galle Road
Colombo 3

Mobile phones, digital video, and other communication technologies are changing the way we learn about and experience the news. Citizen journalists are getting to the scene of breaking news stories and expanding our knowledge of communities in every corner of the world. How have you contributed to citizen journalism in your own community? What are topics that inspire other young citizen journalists around the world?

For more details contact Nowzad Jabbar @ the American Center:
Tel: 011 249 8128, 077 236 6368
Email: nowzadaj@state.gov

No parking, you are allowed to bring personal electronic devices such as cell phones and laptops.